Police Constable Joe Brown has always pushed the envelope. This time he's gone too far. When he skips out from work early one night to be with his mistress, his partner and best friend is gunned down. Now Joe is in danger of losing his marriage, his career, and his pension. Not only must he accept responsibility for his partner's death, Joe must also come to terms with the revelation that his partner and his wife were having an affair. Complicating matters is the fact that Joe's mistress, the mother of his illegitimate daughter, is being blackmailed by a sleazy welfare investigator. With his back against the wall, Joe has a choice to make. He can salvage his career and marriage or he can throw it all away and rescue his lover and illegitimate daughter.
